BEST PRACTICES

VTM NSS College, Dhanuvachapuram, VTMNSS College is a vanguard institution established by Nair Service Society in 1964 to provide congenial ambience for academic pursuits to the students from the remote areas of Southern Kerala. The institution has a glorious past and its cultural heritage ennobles and enlivens our day-to-day life. It is a memoir of a bygone age which acknowledged an ardent group of students and faculty members, who like those at present questioned outdated theories, evaluated current issues and envisaged a bright future. History doesn't anchor here, but it leads us towards a goal visualised by a strong and committed legend, Bharatha Kesari Padmabhushan Mannathu Padmanabhan who pursued a noble endeavour to democratise the horizons of education during turbulent times. Without his twin qualities of genius and philanthropy all those achievements made hitherto would not have been possible. He still inspires the college's dedicated learning community, in furthering exploration, discovery and creativity. Located in a lush green environment, the campus covers an area of 20 Acres on a hillock at Dhanuvachapuram, a place of historical significance enroute Kanyakumari on the southernmost part of Kerala.

With the aim of providing holistic education to the learners, the institution caters to equip them with life skills endowed with an ardent fervour to excel in life and to foster a strong sense of commitment towards society and nation at large. The institution has time and again provided its students various platforms to explore their abilities and skills and craftsmanship through various skill enhancement programmes. These programmes/activities included various skill-based training workshops that included book binding, soap making from natural ingredients, yoga – health and fitness (also conducted as an add-on course), scrap making, organic farming, jewelry making, etc.

I. BEST PRACTICE – “NAIPUNYA – ONE STUDENT ONE SKILL”

1. Title of the Practice: Naipunya is a Sanskrit word – which means skills - VTM NSS College, Dhanuvachapuram has adopted the Best Practice “Naipunya – One Student-One Skill” in order to equip the learners with a life skill other than their university prescribed curriculum.

2. Objectives of the Practice:

i) To uphold the mission and vision of the institution - Being a centre of higher learning, the institution aims to create and impart creative, critical, inclusive, socially sensitive and regionally viable knowledge for the holistic development of the students

ii) To aid the students to discover their aptitude and skill apart from their programme of study

iii) To inculcate life skills and enable them to be industry ready

iv) To equip our student community with a strong sense of responsibility and commitment in one’s own life and towards others as well.

vi) To promote entrepreneurial ability among the learners and to provide them the confidence to face the practical world at large.

vii) To indoctrinate the qualities and ethics of team work, leadership and self-esteem.

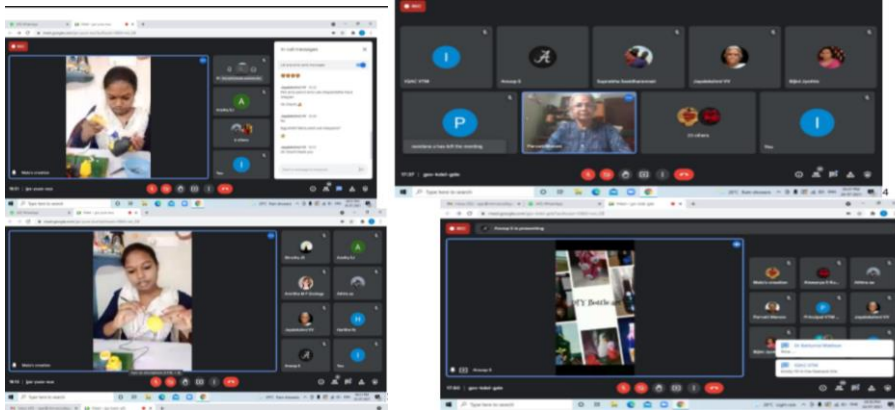

3. The Context: As an institution with a rural background and with limited resources to function, the college strives to provide and cater to the well-being of not only the learners but to the society in general. The first-generation learners in this institution struggles to come out and interact with the society at large due to lack of exposure in various social dimensions. Individuals with higher educational qualifications are intended to be part of social construction, irrespective of their specialisation. In a highly competitive world, the learners are required to fight fiercely to mark a niche for themselves and the changing world scenario is such that the skill of a person earns them a gateway to success. With this novel thought, our institution revamped the skill enhancement programmes and relaunched the programme “Naipunya – One Student – One Skill” as a pathway for the students to realise their potential and accomplish their dreams.

4. The Practice: Higher education envisions holistic development of learners within which the augmentation of the capabilities of the learners becomes pertinent. Mere acquisition of knowledge is insufficient to attain the core values of higher education. Our institution tries to enlighten the minds of the learners through activities beyond the curriculum. In this context we attempt to equip the learner to realise their own potential and to make them industry ready. AAs such, experts from various fields like entrepreneurs, faculty members from our institution, trainers, dietitians, farmers, specialists, etc. were invited as resource persons and interested learners were given hands on training. Our mission is to ensure productive engagement of our institution in the community. This in large is aimed to inculcate value education through experiential learning. The programme has the following components:

- Ensure that each student acquires at least one skill that will prepare them to be industry ready or future entrepreneurs. The resources for this assistance will be provided by the college community and the training is completely free of cost.
- Promoting small scale industry and home-based entrepreneurships.
- Playing the role of mediator/consultant by bridging the institution with various Govt./ Non-government agencies NGOs as form of collaboration, with the purpose of introducing the students to the industry.
- Enabling the learners to become self-dependent and to develop a sense of leadership, self-respect to oneself and commitment to their family and society at large.
- The workshops/training programmes are organized as per the convenience of the resource persons and the learners (equally) without disrupting their learning hours.
- After the successful completion of the workshops/training programmes, the participants are given workshops/training programme completion certificates.

6. Problems encountered and resources required: During the conduct of these skill-based programmes, we encountered many difficulties and one of the major constraints was acquiring fund for the conduct of programmes as the learners were given this free of cost. The only source of income for the college is through PTA fund which is used for all the academic, administrative and miscellaneous expenses. However, the faculty members utilised the finances diligently and the available fund from the PTA. Most of our esteemed resource persons were industrious and whole heartedly devoted themselves to teach and equip our learners with respective skills. Another constraint was that of time as organizing such sessions without disrupting the hours for teaching-learning, however, we were able to manage them efficaciously. A major hurdle was the pandemic situation that rendered us helpless, as initially learners were apprehensive of learning a skill in a close-knit space, however, the classes were conducted by following all the Covid 19 protocols.

3. The Context: As an institution with a rural background and with limited resources to function, the college strives to provide and cater to the well-being of not only the learners but also to the society in general. The first-generation learners in this institution struggles to come out and interact with the society at large due to lack of exposure in various social dimensions. Individuals with higher educational qualifications are intended to be part of social construction, irrespective of their specialisation. In a highly competitive world, the learners are required to fight fiercely to mark a niche for themselves and the changing world scenario is such that the skill of a person earns them a gateway to success. With this novel thought, our institution revamped the skill enhancement programmes and relaunched the programme “PRAGATHI – Holistic Progress of the Self and the Society”. Educated individuals who are holistically trained to address the issues of society add to the wealth of nation. Our institution envisages to mould the young fresh minds towards proactive social activism. Our mission is to help the students to address the needs of the local community, crossing cultural barrier, in a harmonious manner. By realising the needs of the marginalised and less privileged sections of the community, with special needs, we envisage to cross the socio-cultural and economic barriers. The community to which we extend our services is unique, which needs wholehearted and sincere humanitarian efforts from various stakeholders of the college community. Here we aim to address individual differences in various dimensions such as physical, intellectual and social, to ensure social inclusiveness with empathy.

4. The Practice: Higher education envisions holistic development of learners within which the augmentation of the capabilities of the learners becomes pertinent. Mere acquisition of knowledge is insufficient to attain the core values of higher education. Our institution tries to enlighten the minds of the learners through activities beyond the curriculum. The core aspects of this practice are sensitizing the college community towards the challenges faced by the community, society, ecosystem, natural habitat and even the slowly receding local customs and traditions - devising inclusive strategies to meet the requirements and implementing the strategies appropriately with a deep sense of empathy. In this context we attempt to reach out to a section of the society which demands exclusive attention and humanitarian concern from the society. Our mission is to ensure productive engagement of our institution in the community. This in large is aimed to inculcate value education through experiential learning. The programme has the following components:

- Ensure that each student acquires/learns an aspect relating to a comprehensive understanding of the community and nature. The resources for this assistance will be provided by the college community and the training is completely free of cost.

Also, the lack of access to mobile handsets (in the case of economically weaker students) and network issues posed a great challenge in disseminating the essence of Pragathi. Lagging university examinations and unexpected schedule of the same also resulted as a hindrance to the smooth conduct of these programmes.
